Home Helpers' Caregiver Uses Earnings to Support Liberian Orphanage

MEDIA, Pa.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--The Media office of The Home Helpers of the Delaware Valley would like to recognize one of its most charitable caregivers, Ida Seeyon. Ida migrated to the US from Africa in 1989, planning to use her nurturing skills to care for the elderly or infirmed. However, her ultimate objective has become the support of the Jemima Thompson Parker Children's Foundation, an orphanage she founded in her home town of Congo Town, Liberia.

Ida donates approximately 50% of her Home Helpers earnings to her orphans. Established in 2004, the Foundation provides a home to 17 children, ages three to nine. Ida periodically sends shipments of clothes, supplies and financial support. Her packages now include donations from Home Helpers' personnel and other community groups. Last Christmas, Home Helpers' staffers collected supplies for Ida's upcoming shipment instead of exchanging office gifts. Nicole Wright, the daughter of Office Administrator Michele Wright, engaged her high school's "InterAct" club, collecting more than 15 boxes of provisions.

"I'm proud of how the office came together to support Ida and her orphanage," said Home Helpers President John Squires. "While our focus is on providing quality care for our clients, it's important to assist the caregivers who make that quality care happen."
