When his father needed more at-home care than family could provide, Ken Benzel of Headland turned to Home Helpers.

Benzel's father, Leroy, was 76 and in the advanced stages of a 12-year battle with Alzheimer's disease. For the last 2 ½ months of his life, Home Helpers helped prepare food and administered care, but also provided peace of mind for the family.

"Basically my mother was taking care of him and it just got to be too much for her," Ken said.

Ken said he was pleased to find that Home Helpers performs background checks on its employees, and impressed that its staff members and Director of Operations Woods Culpepper consistently communicated with him about his father's care.

Making clients' lives easier is what Home Helpers is all about, Culpepper says. Open in Dothan since October 2009, the company provides a range of in-home services not only for seniors but also those with special needs, patients recently released from the hospital, new mothers, or anyone who needs a bit of assistance to retain their freedom and remain in their own homes.

With caring and skill, the professionals at Home Helpers provide services that include transportation, grocery shopping, and staff members have even accompanied clients on vacation.

"My philosophy is taking care of many individual needs and taking care of them in their homes so they can stay in their homes," Culpepper said.

Ken said he'd tried another service provider in the past that turned out not to be a good fit, but was more than satisfied with Home Helpers.

"All of his people were very respectful of my mother and my wishes," he said. "They did an excellent job."
